The League of Women Voters is a non-partisan, nonprofit organization of women and men of every age, race, background and political belief. Through more than 1200 local Leagues, state Leagues and the national organization, League members work to promote citizen action on local, state, and national issues.

Fewer than 18% of Kansas judges are women. Fewer than 4% are minorities. Salina's League of Women Voters wants the faces of Kansas judges to look more like the faces of Kansas citizens—more women and more racial and ethnic diversity. We asked how that could happen?

Can we start early, raise awareness of college students and help plant a seed of ambition there? If that African-American sophomore man or that white freshman woman has never seen a judge who looks like him or her, will that student consider the possibility of becoming a judge or lawyer?

Are we ourselves biased? Do we, as many studies show, when asked to picture a "leader" or a "judge," reflexively picture a white man?

Who chooses judges? About half of Kansas districts elect their judges. In the other half, including Salina, a judicial selection committee sends three judge nominees to Topeka and the governor makes the final choice. What difference does the selection process make?

The League plans two rare opportunities for our community to discuss these issues with judges who are themselves women and/or minorities, including Supreme Court justices.

We hope to see you at both events! More details, pages 3 & 4.

JUDICIAL DIVERSITY PROJECT

MARCH 25 PANEL DISCUSSION AT KANSAS WESLEYAN

At 7:00pm, Thursday, March 25, KWU Peters Science Hall, three Kansas judges will discuss diversity, a topic is of significance to each of them. Supreme Court Justice Carol Beier is only the third woman in history to serve on the state's highest court. Judge Henry Green, Jr., is the only African-American on the Kansas Court of Appeals, Kansas's second highest court. Riley County Magistrate Judge Sheila Hochhauser is the only woman judge in her district.

These judges will discuss their own paths to their current positions, how their diversity affects their work as judges, and their views of judicial diversity in general. They will take questions from the audience.

Several Kansas Wesleyan professors are requiring their students to attend, and we are expecting students from K-State Salina and Brown Mackie as well.

Please come with your questions ready. The event will officially end at 8:30pm, but we have asked the judges to stay if they can for a few minutes of one-on-one questions.

We thank KWU Dean of Student Life Dianne Wayman for help setting this up and for providing cookies, coffee and tea for refreshments.

NOTE: Justice Beier is appearing in place of Justice Marla Luckert, who had planned to attend but had a conflict at the last minute.

Honorable Carol A. Beier, Kansas Supreme Court (see p. 3). Honorable Henry W. Green Jr., Court of Appeals Judge since 1993 - is the only African-American man on Kansas's second-highest court. He received his undergraduate degree from Kansas State University with dual majors in History and Political Science in 1972. He is a 1975 graduate of the University of Kansas Law School where he served as vice president of the third-year class and as a research assistant. He engaged in the general practice of law between 1975 and 1993 and also served as a part-time instructor at the National College of Business in Shawnee Mission. From 1979 until his appointment to the court, he served as a member of the United States Panel of Bankruptcy Trustees for the District of Kansas.

Judge Green

Honorable Sheila Hochhauser, Magistrate Judge in Riley County District Court, Manhattan - graduated from law school at the University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill in 1984. She moved to Kansas in 1985 and was in private legal practice here for 22 years before becoming District Magistrate Judge for Riley County in 2007, the only woman lawyer to serve as a judge in that region of Kansas. She has been a member of the Access to Justice Committee and Pro Bono Legal Services Committee of the Kansas Bar Association. She was 1996-1997 president of the Riley County Bar Association and has taught Business Law at Kansas State University in Manhattan.

JUDICIAL DIVERSITY PROJECT

KANSAS SUPREME COURT JUSTICE

To Address the Salina League's Annual Meeting April 17

Justice Carol Beier will light up the podium at the Salina League of Women Voters' Annual Meeting, Saturday, April 17, at St. John's Military School. Don't miss this event! Her presentation is open to the public.

Her appearance, a part of our Judicial Diversity Project, will allow Beier to give her views on Judicial Diversity and other matters of her choosing.

Justice Beier

Justice Beier is well known to the attorney members of the Salina LWV as the delightfully animated, intelligent and thoughtful presenter at the yearly Kansas Women Attorneys Conference in Lindsborg, but she has recently gained notoriety of a less pleasant sort.

Controversies Arise

The anti-abortion group "Kansans for Life" (KFL) has initiated the "Fire Beier" campaign with a full-page newspaper ad in the Topeka paper. The ad, said to have cost about $800, urges KFL supporters to vote against Justice Beier when she comes up for a retention vote in the November election.

In general, each Supreme Court Justice appears on state ballots every six years in a "retention vote." Unless a majority votes to remove the justice, he or she remains on the court. Few judges are voted out.

Justice Beier authored the Supreme Court's majority decision in the 2008 case of Planned Parenthood vs. Phill Kline. The decision, which found in favor of Phill Kline, included some paragraphs critical of Kline's actions.

This decision is the focus of KFL's contention that Justice Beier is an abortion activist and should be removed from the court.

The KFL campaign sparked action in the Kansas legislature when Kansas's Governmental Ethics Commission determined that Kansas campaign finance laws do not apply to judicial retention elections, because the law applies to "state officers" and candidates for state office, and Supreme Court justices do not meet the definition of state officers. This means that either side would have no limitation on the amount of contributions they could solicit or receive and no obligation to report the sources of their funding.

This determination came about because Justice Beier asked the commission what rules applied, and the answer sent the legislature into a flurry of activity to revise the law.

Since the KFL ad came out, a Johnson County businessman began publically criticizing Justice Beier as a source of wasteful government spending because she authored the unanimous Supreme Court decision in the school finance case. He also published a full-page ad in Topeka criticizing Justice Beier for helping judge a law student practice court ("moot court") competition in California in which the issue being argued by the students dealt with gay marriage. The ads met with some protests among legislators who said the participation in moot court competitions was a common and useful practice for judges across the country.

All these controversies arose after we decided to invite Justice Beier to our meeting and did not deter us.

Justice Beier's Biography

Justice Carol A. Beier was born in Kansas City, Kansas, in 1958. She attended Benedictine College in Atchison, earned a BS degree in Journalism in 1981, and went on to work as an editor at the Kansas City Times. She received her law degree in 1985 from KU. She became a law clerk for U.S. Tenth Circuit Court of Appeals Judge James K. Logan (the Tenth Circuit includes Kansas). She then practiced law in Washington, DC, first as a staff attorney at the National Women's Law Center and next at the law firm of Fox, Kintner, Plitkin & Kahn, doing white-collar criminal defense. She moved to Wichita and practiced law in the Wichita law firm of Foulston & Siefkin, LLP, for eleven years. There she handled commercial disputes, appearing in District Court and the Kansas Court of Appeals. She spent a year teaching and directing student clinical programs at KU Law School. She served as a Kansas Court of Appeals Judge from February 2000 until she was appointed to the Supreme Court in 2003. She earned an LL.M. (Master of Laws) degree in the Judicial Process from the University of Virginia School of Law Graduate Program for Judges in 2004.

Justice Beier is married and has three children.

Information for this article came from internet sites for Lawrence Journal World, KSNT Television, Topeka Capitol-Journal, Hays Daily News, and www.kscourts.org. The Phill Kline decision, "Compr. Health of Planned Parenthood of Ks. v. Kline," can be accessed online at www.kscourts.org/kansas-courts/supreme-court/justice-bios/beier.asp.

OTHER JUDICIAL DIVERSITY PROJECTS

IN SALINA

Salina LWV devised four projects in response to the call for Judicial Diversity grant proposals last summer. The first two—our university forum and our annual meeting speaker—are described elsewhere in this newsletter. The other two are:

- 1) A speaker for our annual Membership Meeting in late August—more details in a future newsletter on that; and
- 2) A research project for local high school students at the Eisenhower Library in Abilene. That program is in the planning stages for fall semester of the 2010-2011 school year.

The Eisenhower Center's Education Specialist is the enormously enthusiastic Kim Barbieri. A former high school teacher, she will be guiding a few students through an exploration of the beginnings of diversity among court personnel in the Eisenhower administration—a rare opportunity for students to work with primary source research materials. According to Barbieri, the issue of judicial selection is one that President Dwight D. Eisenhower took very seriously, especially in the south after the Brown vs. Board of Education decision. Watch for the students' public presentation at the end of their project.

ELSEWHERE IN KANSAS

April 12—Lawrence: Forum at KU's Dole Institute of Politics with Tenth Circuit Judge Deanell Tacha and Dole Institute director Bill Lacy.

April 29—Emporia: Forum with a law professor, bar association official, judicial selection committee members and attorney, at Emporia State University.

May 1—Manhattan: LWV Kansas council meeting—presentation by both women on the Kansas Supreme Court, Justices Marla Luckert and Carol Beier.

May 7—Wichita: 6pm, Wichita LWV joins the Wichita River Festival Sun-down Parade to promote judicial diversity.

Fall 2010—Johnson County: Televised discussion of judicial diversity on KCPT-TV public television.

September 15—Manhattan: Constitution Day forum with Supreme Court Justice and other diverse judges.

September 16—Wichita: Constitution Day forum with six judges—male and female, white and minority.

September 17—Great Bend: Constitution Day forum with two diverse local judges.

ELSEWHERE IN THE U.S.

June 11-15—Atlanta, GA, National League of Women Voters convention, including a panel on the Kansas Judicial Diversity Project, June 14, 3:00 to 4:30pm.

WHY STUDY DIVERSITY IN THE COURTS?

(Reprinted from the Dec. 2009 VOTER)

For many years, the League of Women Voters has worked to promote fair and impartial courts nationwide. During the two years from 2009 to 2011, the League is focusing on promoting diversity at all levels of the Kansas judiciary to enhance the legitimacy of our system of justice in the eyes of an increasingly diverse public.

According to Norman L. Greene's The Judicial Independence Through Fair Appointments Act, 34 Fordham Urb. L.J. 13,25 (2007), the needs to promote a more diverse bench are: 1) it will inspire more confidence in the judiciary, 2) it will be more representative of the broader community, 3) it will promote justice, 4) it will promote equality of opportunity for historically excluded groups, and 5) it will promote judicial impartiality. A continuation of the status quo "[a]ffects the way citizens look at the role courts play in their communities, it erodes the trust in the courts, questions the right of equality under the law, and courts may not be perceived to be fair and impartial."

You can read much more about this topic at the Kansas League of Women Voters website (www.lwvk.org/studyjudiciary.html).

HAVE A QUESTION ABOUT A PARTICULAR KANSAS JUDGE?

Evaluations of Kansas judges are now posted online for the public to view. Go to www.kansasjudicialperformance.org to read what attorneys and trial participants have to say about the judges they have worked with. At the very bottom of the page, type in a name, county, or other identifier to find the judge of your choice.

PRESIDENT'S REPORT

The Salina League of Women Voters is full of opportunities for action and important work these days—as usual. Letters to the editor from several members have been featured on the Salina Journal's opinion page. Our public appearances play and replay on Community Access television. College students are hearing about our forum—and attending, we hope.

All of our efforts promoting diversity among judges will be planting ideas in the thoughts of local young people—a generation that researchers say already thinks differently about race, diversity and itself. We find ourselves thinking differently, too.

The League of Women Voters has always been about thinking differently. Ninety years ago, both women and men had difficulty imagining that a woman might be as mentally capable as a man of voting on issues of self-governance and politics. It took even longer to reach a consensus that people of other races and ethnicities could do the same. Today in Washington, we have an African-American president, a woman Speaker of the House of Representatives and Secretary of State. In Kansas, we've seen our second woman governor tapped to be Secretary of Health and Human Services, and two of our Kansas Supreme Court Justices are women. In our own city of Salina, our mayor is a Hispanic woman, and we have moved from no women judges a decade ago to a current tally of three—our municipal judge, our magistrate judge and one of our four district judges.

Sometimes you think things will never change, and all of a sudden you realize they have.

I want to thank our many active on- and off-board members for all their good work. Many of us put in a few pleasant hours on a Saturday morning in January planning our year's program. I missed the Finance Drive "stuffing party" at Emma Doherty's house but heard only positive reports. All of our board members have put in extra time: Janice Norlin, as my fellow attorney on the board, put in much thought and effort to help us line up the judges for both spring events—as well as updating the website and writing excellent minutes as board secretary. Membership Chair Margaret Wyatt, along with faithfully bringing Pecan Sandies to Lunch & Learns, set aside time for meetings with Dianne Wayman at KWU to plan the March forum and contacted many faculty and staff to promote the forum. Treasurer Donita Michaelson puts in significant hours keeping track of the finances and budget. We have discovered in Dina Giron a wealth of talent for graphics—she has been making our posters and Lunch & Learn promotions, as well as contacting the L&L presenters. Kaye Crawford, Ardean Maxey, Carla Strand and Lori Trow are each great help just when we need it—Kaye and Ardean are full of creative ideas, Ardean is artistic, Carla writes articles and serves as backup secretary, Lori and Kaye are both willing to travel to state League events. LaVelle Frick, Jan Mendell and Anita Huntley worked hard on the nominating committee recently. Mary Frances Hogg faithfully keeps the League legislative information coming our way. Marge Mintun helped contact faculty about the KWV forum, and of course you get to see Ted Mintun's contribution of time with each League email that comes your way.

Think if even more of the interesting people in the Salina area joined us. Please consider asking those people to become League members. The more good people we have, the more good work we can get done.

Thank you for being a member of the Salina League of Women Voters.

—Ann Zimmerman

UPDATE ON THE KANSAS LEGISLATURE

It's been a busy legislative session in Topeka. Paul Johnson, the LWVK lobbyist has been busy compiling information for the league. The following was taken from his report, which was edited by state president Ernestine Krehbiel. Full reports can be found online at <http://lwvk.org/legisupdates/e-reports>. They are interesting reading.

Issues being discussed in early March:

Proposed limit to contributions for retention campaigns of high court judges: Kansas senators have drafted proposals to regulate campaigns to oust or retain members of the state's appellate courts. Interest in such legislation comes as abortion opponents are waging a "Fire Beier" campaign against Supreme Court Justice Carol Beier.

Appellate court members are appointed by the governor but must stand for retention. In late February, the state ethics commission said those elections aren't covered by Kansas campaign finance laws. Both proposed bills would limit contributions to Supreme Court justices and Court of Appeal judges' retention campaigns to $2,000. Both their campaign committees and groups seeking to oust them would have to file reports on their activities.

Amending the state constitution to cut out federal health care plan:

Sponsors said a proposed rewrite of the state constitution was needed to let the federal government know Kansans don't want to be told they must buy health insurance. But opponents say it was a plan created by the health insurance industry to preserve a failed status quo. On a 12-9, party-line vote, the House Health and Human Services Committee voted to recommend House Concurrent Resolution 5032 favorable for passage. The measure could now go to the full House. It would need two-thirds approval there and in the Senate before being added to a statewide ballot to be decided by voters. An identical measure was passed without recommendation earlier this session by the Senate Public Health and Welfare Committee but remains lodged in the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Child welfare hearings:

These hearings were rescheduled for early March. House Bill 2461 would prohibit the state from renewing its foster care, adoption and family preservation contracts; House Bill 2511 would allow SRS to fund grandparents to care for grandchildren who have been removed from their parents' custody; House Bill 2512 would mandate court review of SRS's placement decisions of foster care children. The courts would have to approve SRS's placement for a foster care child to be moved.

Here is a look at what has passed, as of early March:

HB2222 is the rescission (budget) bill for the current fiscal year. However, current revenues are still short to fund this budget. So if revenues don't pick up, there could be additional cuts to schools THIS year. This measure has passed both houses.

2280 deals with capital outlay. It would reduce state aid assistance to those districts that receive it for capital outlay and improvements. The good thing is it would give some districts the flexibility to transfer any general funds they put in capital outlay in school year 08/09 back to their contingency reserve in 10/11. This measure has passed in the house.

HB2410 reduces at-risk dollars to schools. This bill would require a second count date for at-risk students, and any schools where parents have not provided the proper paperwork would have their at-risk funding reduced. The department of education estimated that this would result in a savings to the state of about $3.2 million dollars. This legislation was based on a Legislative Post Audit Study from 2006. This measure has passed in the house.

Here is a look at some failed issues:

Campaign transparency: Senate Bill No. 418 would have facilitated greater transparency in campaign electioneering. We encouraged Senators to support this legislation (Kay Hale testified for the League), but it was juggled between committees and never went to the floor.

The Death Penalty: The Senate floor debate on SB 375 abolishing the death penalty in the State senate was bi-partisan but failed by a 20-20 tied vote.

SB355 was the bill that would have stripped retired teachers who have returned to the classroom (many because of shortages in their specialty) of the continuing contract right. Which meant that districts could non-renew their contracts as late as the day before school started (it was defeated in the Senate on final action).

Thanks to Carla Strand for compiling this article from several League documents.

MARCH LIBRARY BOARD OBSERVER REPORT

Salina Public Library Board of Trustees met on March 16, 2010.

Friends of the Library met the same afternoon to evaluate scholarship applications.

Discussion Agenda

Energy improvement project. Due to the complexity of this report, it is written in an abbreviated style.

Two representatives of the Honeywell Corporation presented their plan.

Recommended upgrades to the library:

Lighting: replace existing light fixtures with high efficiency 28-watt lamps, install occupancy sensors to turn lights off when room is unoccupied, install LED exit signs (lower electricity consumption than existing incandescent signs), install reflectors on current fixtures, place exterior lights on photocells to automatically turn them off during daylight hours, install dimmers for ceiling lights near windows since during daylight hours less lamp brightness will be needed.

Consider applying film to windows, which would block some summer heat but during the winter would block sunlight that would help heat rooms.

Building envelope: weather-strip doors, seal cracks and upgrade insulation.

Climate controls: replace pneumatic control devices with digital devices, use zone duct dampers to more effectively control the climate in various parts of the library, install devices to turn on electricity to vending machines at night only when necessary (not continuously) to keep items cool.

Mechanical: replace existing old and inefficient chiller, install variable speed duct fans (a constant high speed is not necessary and wastes electricity).

Electrical: upgrade panels to a higher current capacity, replace worn connectors.

Analysis of current library utility costs: electricity about 77%, natural gas about 16% and water about 7%.

Total project cost $654,795; energy savings would pay for cost in about 20 years; first library payment due December 2011 (after the work is completed). If energy savings are not achieved Honeywell will pay the difference.

A representative of a financial firm discussed whether to fund this project with federal stimulus funds which are taxable and might later be difficult to refinance, or with another type of non-taxable bond which would have less government bureaucracy. Government provides a 35% subsidy for stimulus bonds; the interest payments thus can save about $85,000 over 20 years, but subsidies must be requested again each year.

In 2011, library's payment on stimulus bonds would be about $38,900. With unsubsidized bonds the first payment would be $53,400. A board member questioned whether the federal subsidy would continue for 20 years. More discussion on this topic is planned for the April meeting.

Monthly Activities for February

Technology Center Internet users: 5599; CLASS sessions: 71 with 1094 participants; meeting room usage: 195, which included 79 in the Learning Center.

The total circulation of materials was 54,194 and for February '09 it was 44,645. The circulation of adult materials was 34,271; for February '09 it was 24,286.

Library Director

This week the tornado emergency procedure will be practiced with persons going to the Prescott Room. The staff lounge in the interior of the basement could be used as an overflow space.

Securitas, the company that provides officers for the library, will have a new security guard this week so a second trained guard would be available if needed.

This article was prepared from information provided by Mike Wilson, LWV observer of the Library Board.

WHAT'S THE SALINA LEAGUE BEEN UP TO?

PROGRAM PLANNING MEETING: On Saturday, January 30, a baker's dozen of League members met to plan League activities for the upcoming year. Almost the entire meeting focused on planning for the Judicial Diversity projects, in between bites of delicious brunch items provided by board members. Photos from the meeting are posted on the Kansas League's website, www.lwvk.org, on the "Media" page of the Judicial Diversity section.

JOINT CITY-COUNTY COMMISSION

MEETING: League members appeared before the Salina and Saline County commission on February 22, celebrating the LWV's 90th birthday with a birthday cake and apprising the commissioners of the Judicial Diversity projects. President Ann Zimmerman addressed the commissioners, while board members Kaye Crawford and Ardean Maxey served up the cake. The League can claim at least partial credit that the meeting happened at all: Their review of all the interlocal agreements came as a result of the League's pressing for a study of consolidation. Two recent informative Salina Journal articles on consolidation elsewhere in Kansas and the U.S. are now linked at the Salina League's website, lwvofsalinaks.com, by clicking on "In the News" in the left-hand column.

FINANCE DRIVE: If all went as planned, you have now received your copy of the Finance Drive letter. Many have already responded to our annual request for donations, and we hope you will, too. Preparing those letters for mailing is an annual event. This year it happened on February 27 at Emma Doherty's house where she shared her culinary expertise, providing an all-red dinner in honor of Valentine's Day. Emma reports that members set a new record for speed in stuffing, sealing, stamping and labeling the letters that went out to members and friends of the League.

WATCH FOR our plans to celebrate the 90th anniversary of women's right to vote—coming up in August, 2010.
